

AN ACT PROHIBITING DISCRIMINATORY ACTION AGAINST A PERSON PROVIDING ADOPTION OR FOSTER CARE SERVICES BASED ON THE PERSON'S RELIGIOUS BELIEF; PROVIDING DEFINITIONS; PROVIDING REMEDIES; AND PROVIDING A STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS."

WHEREAS, the State of Montana seeks to place a child in a safe, loving, and supportive home whenever the state is required to place a child with an adoptive or foster family; and

WHEREAS, adoption and foster care agencies in Montana assist families with adoption and foster parent placements of children; and

WHEREAS, the adoption agencies and foster care providers of this state represent diverse organizations and groups, some of which are faith-based and some of which are nonfaith-based; and

WHEREAS, children in need of placement services benefit from having as many adoption agencies and foster care providers as possible because the more agencies and providers that take part in placement services, the greater the likelihood that a child will find a permanent placement; and

WHEREAS, the United States Supreme Court in Fulton v. City of Philadelphia, 141 S. Ct. 1868 (2021), recognized the benefits of having more and not fewer adoption agencies and foster care providers, stating that "[m]aximizing the number of foster families and minimizing liability are important goals, but the City fails to show that granting [Catholic Social Services] an exception will put those goals at risk. If anything, including CSS in the program seems likely to increase, not reduce, the number of available foster parents"; and

WHEREAS, children and families benefit greatly from the adoption and foster care services provided by faith-based and nonfaith-based child placing agencies; and

WHEREAS, faith-based organizations and groups have a lengthy and distinguished history of providing adoption and foster care services in Montana; and

WHEREAS, private child-placing agencies and individuals, including faith-based child-placing agencies and individuals, have the right to free exercise of religion under both the state and federal constitutions, which,

under well-settled principles of constitutional law, includes the freedom to abstain from conduct that conflicts with an agency's sincerely held religious beliefs; and

WHEREAS, ensuring that faith-based child-placing agencies can continue to provide adoption and foster care services will benefit the children and families who receive those services; and

WHEREAS, the United States Constitution allows all adoption and foster care providers to operate according to their beliefs without fear of unjust government punishment; and

WHEREAS, in the unanimous decision in Fulton v. City of Philadelphia, the U.S. Supreme Court made clear that state governments violate the requirements of religious neutrality when they undermine religious beliefs or practices and that the "[g]overnment fails to act neutrally when it proceeds in a manner intolerant of religious beliefs or restricts practices because of their religious nature"; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Espinoza v. Montana Dept. of Revenue, 140 S. Ct. 2246, 2276 (2020) (Gorsuch, J., concurring), stated that "[t]he Constitution forbids laws that prohibit the free exercise of religion. That guarantee protects not just the right to be a religious person, holding beliefs inwardly and secretly; it also protects the right to act on those beliefs outwardly and publicly [italics removed]"; and

WHEREAS, the Espinoza Court noted that the U.S. Supreme Court has "long recognized the importance of protecting religious actions, not just religious status" and, quoting Cantwell v. Connecticut, 310 U.S. 296, 3030 (1940), state that "the First Amendment protects the 'freedom to act' as well as the 'freedom to believe'"; and

WHEREAS, in Thomas v. Review Bd. of Ind. Employment Security Div., 450 U.S. 707, 717-718 (1981), the U.S. Supreme Court held that the government violates the Free Exercise Clause whenever it "conditions receipt of an important benefit upon conduct prescribed by a religious faith, or... denies such a benefit because of conduct mandated by a religious belief, thereby putting substantial pressure on an adherent to modify his behavior and to violate his beliefs."
